

Dear artists,

Since the outbreak of the Corona epidemic, we have been going through difficult times. We know that this period has been extremely hard for you too. We're doing everything we can to prevent gatherings. That is why we have not yet given permission to street performers.

Unfortunately, you are therefore being hit particularly hard by these sanitary measures. We promise to keep you informed about the government's decisions concerning events and gatherings of more people in the public space.

In the meantime, however, you will have to persevere. We are convinced that 2021 will be a year in which more and more things will gradually be possible.

Jacques Martel - Director of the Culture Department - City of Brussels